

TO LET: CROFT, BARKLAND, FAIR ISLE

This National Trust for Scotland-owned croft will be available to let under crofting tenure in summer 2008. The croft house has four-bedrooms and good outbuildings and sits on 10.5 hectares of croft land with associated common grazing.

Particularly suitable for a young family or couple who are eligible for the Croft Entrant Scheme and keen to join small island community of around seventy people.

If you are familiar with crofting and have a secondary vocation which is transposable to this location and/or are willing to turn your hand to other work which becomes available from time to time – ie deck-hand on boat, various trade works etc, then you may have the appropriate skill set and ability to run a croft in this marginal but exceptional location while also greatly contributing to the community as a whole

Please write to The National Trust for Scotland, Balnain House, Inverness, IV3 5HR by 25 April 2008 for further information and application details.

If you are not familiar with crofting please speak with The Crofters Commission or visit their website in order to get background information prior to seriously considering an application.
